As the vote progressed and it became apparent that Stevenson's nomination was assured, the delegations began changing their votes, so that by the time the end of the roll had been reached nearly all who had voted for other candidates had changed to the successful candidate, so that the usual motion to make the vote unanimous was scarcely necessary.

Displeases "Pops" and Republicans. According to dispatches from Kansas City last night, the nomination of Steven second place on the ticket with Bryan did not please either the silver re-publicans or the populists. One dispatch

Two minutes after Chairman Brown called the silver republican convention to order at 3:30 p.m. the convention voiced its feeiing in regard to the nomination of Steven-son by howling down Delegate Lewis of

"I believed this morning it was our plain "I believed this morning it was our plain duty to nominate Bryan and Towne," he said, "but I believe now it is our plain duty to indorse Bryan and Stevenson."

A perfect storm of groans and protests arose from the delegates, many of them standing on their chairs.

"No, never;" "Sit down," "Rats" they shouted, and Mr. Lewis was finally combelled to take his seat.

Senator Ransom of Nebraska gained the floor, and in an eloquent speech pleaded for moderation.

"What do you favor?" asked one delegate. "Tell us now."

"I favor the nomination of Towne," said Senator Ransom, "but let us not act until we hear from him. He will be here soon."

Webb McNall of Kansas was then recognized. "It is not necessary to go outside.

Webb McNail of Kansas was then recognized. "It is not necessary to go outside of our party for a Vice President," said he, an.id shouts of approval.

"Do you gentlemen accept the tail end of the Cleveland administration? Do you believe that good judgment?"

The hall fairly trembled with a storm of "nocs"

Moved Towne's Nomination. "I move that Charles A. Towne be declared the unanimous nominee of the convention." shouted McNall. "I second the motion," shouted a dozer expressed his pleasure, and soon after dictated the following:

"Mr. Stevenson is an excellent man for the place. He supported the ticket in 1896 and can defend the platform of 1890. Towne would have strengthened the ticket in the states where there is fusion between the democrats, populists and silver republicans, but the support given Mr. Stevenson shows the convention thought Mr. Stevenson the more available man. The choice has fallen upon one who is in every respect worthy of the position."

Mr. Bryan then sent the following message: delegates at once. "Wait, gentlemen," exclaimed Senator Teller, springing to his feet. "We want ome caim deliberation."

"We have had it for three days," inter-"We have had it for three days," Inter-rupted a delegate.
"No man living should stand in the way of this cause," said Mr. Teller. "I believe this cause involves the life of the repub-lic; a context for liberty, for the existence of free government. Let us wait; let us wait until we hear from Mr. Towne."
With his voice betraying deep emotion, Senator Teller said; "I am going to support Mr. Bryan and the ticket in every way I can, not for Mr. Bryan, but for the coun-try which I so love." And then Mr. Teller, amid tears streaming from his eyes, took bits core; amid tears streaming from his eyes, took his seat.

W. T. Foster gained the floor and insisted on the chair putting the question. During the confusion that resulted Charles A. Towne entered the hall, and in an instant the hail was a pandemonium.

Cheer after cheer went up, and flags and handkerchiefs were waved by the excited delegates. Towne was immediately surrounded by those on the stage.

"Mr. Towne, we want to nominate you," said an Indiana delegate.

Mr. Towne Declines.

Mr. Towne Declines.

Mr. Towne, pale-faced, but determined shook his head emphatically. "The silver republicans have made a good fight," said Mr. Towne. "They have been defeated, but," he said, "It is our duty to support the ticket nominated by the demosupport the ticket nominated by the democratic national convention." He insisted there was an issue in the coming e-ection which towers above men, and he implored the convention to look at it as he did. He begged them to remember that Bryan was still at the head. The platform of the democratic party was aimost identical, at least in principle, with the platform of the silver republican party.

The convention gave Mr. Towne most respectful consideration, and while he was speaking it was evident that the convention was disposed to follow his advice and wishes.

Mr. Towne was followed by Delegate Shafroth of Colorado, who favored the support of the ticket nominated by the democratic convention.

Senator Dubois was recognized, and said:
"While there are many and hearts here today, no one feels more thenly than myself the disaster which has overtaken us.
But we must view itnas-our leader, Charlie question be left to the national committee, with plenary powers."

Chairman Brown urged the delegates "not to crucify Mr. Towne." Amid much confusion the previous question was called for.
It was on Senator Dubois, motion, and by an almost unanimous vote it was carried,
and the convention adjourned sine die.

It is rather amusing to see their line of demarcation; they apparently refy upon the constitutional question to establish that difference as to whether the flag follows the Constitution or the Constitution follows the flag. We are perfectly willing ref meet that issue on their own hypothesis. So far as the free silver plank is concerned. I think all republicans will be satisfied with that. It is certainly satisfactory to me."

All through the day telegrams of congratulation poured in on the presidential candidate. Among Mr. Bryan's callers were H. B. Paul and J. S. Smith of New Jersey, who came in from Kansas City. They told Mr. Bryan the democrats were hopeful of carrying that state for him, and they believed New York without doubt would be democratic.

GREAT INTEREST IN ATHLETICS

W. W. Astor Offends London's Swell Social Set.

FOREIGN NEWS AND GOSSIP

LONDON, July 7.-Truly, Great Britain is the land of sport. British soldiers are fighting a barbarous enemy in the far east, in a dramatic endeavor to save the lives of some of their fellow countrymen and maintain their country's prestige; British sol-Ashanti, where British officers, women and children are in danger of being massacred by revolted savages, and a quarter of a million Britishers are still grappling with the stupendous military and civil difficulties that must be overcome before South Africa is pacified. Yet, at home, racing, cricket, running, rowing, polo, tennis and athletic contests of all descriptions hold practically undiminished sway over public interest. It is true that Henley week, as a social occa sion, has been more slimly attended than for years past and the gorgeous summer tollets did not blossom as usual on the banks of the Thames. But, while society deserted Henley, there was no diminution in the quality of the rowing or in the interest of those who watch Henley for its sporting rather than for its social features. The war and the weather were chiefly responsible for society's absence from the great river carnival. The beginning of the week was so wretchedly wet and cold that many persons canceled their projected trip. The Oxford-Cambridge cricket match did not suffer from these causes.

sentatives to use their influence in urging their parties to support Bryan and Stevenson.

"The democrats all over the country" said Committeeman Johnson, turning to the populists, "know that Mr. Bryan is your kind of a man. If the two parties were to unite and factions arose every demograt knows that Mr. Bryan would be found with your party. Democrats felt that the nomination of Bryan was in deference to the more radical reform element of the party, and that a selection should be made for Vice President to hold the conservatives. This brought about Mr. Stevenson's nomination. There never was a time that Mr. Towne had a show of success."

It was fully decided to hold another conference later between the democratic committee and subcommittees from the populists and silver republicans, the result to be reported to the full committee of the two latter parties for approval.

The conference developed a peculiar situation in some respects. The democrats were anxious for the withdrawal of Towne from the populist ticket, and the silver republicans said as far as they were concerned they would, through their committee, nominate Stevenson, although profoundly disappointed that Towne was not nominated by the democratic convention. The populists were not in favor of the withdrawal of Towne, and maintained that the populist national committee, acting under instructions of the Sioux Falls convention, would be compelled to put another candidate in the field in the event of Towne's withdrawal, and the committee need not withdrawal. al, and the committee need not withdraw-al, and the committee need not withdraw him. More than this, they asserted that if Towne should be withdrawn and they should put another man in his place their organization would be endangered, and such action would result in populists going over to the middle of the road ticket nominated at Cincinnati. The international athletics and polo are also looked forward to with keen interest. also looked forward to with keen interest. What, with such large athletic contingents at present from the United States, an annual convention of the largest engineer organization in America holding its meetings within the shadow of Westminster Abbey, the hundreds of excursionists who, on their way to Paris, pay a flying visit to England, to say nothing of those who regularly cross the Atlantic for a European holiday, it is almost impossible to go anywhere without meeting Americans. They are omnipresent. Over liftly Americans who were auxious to attend the Fourth of July banquet had to celebrate the day by themselves, owing to lack of space. The Fourth reception of the United States ambassador, Mr. Joseph H. Choate, for Americans, was more crowded than remembered in the history of the American embassy. A curlous feature was the presence of a man who strolled past the flunkeys and said "How d'ye do" to Mrs. Choate without removing his hat, and, still with his head covered, sat down in the drawing room, full of American women, and began to puff al lighted cigar. After a futile attempt to engage the ambassador in the conversation, this individual left, not in the to the middle of the road ticket nominated at Cincinnati.

This would lessen the chances of carrying states in the west and in the intermountain country. It was also said that Mr. Bryan had been apprised of the situation, and that several men had received word from him to keep Towne in the field, and to run a double-tailed ticket in order to hold the populists and silver republicans in the western states. The fact that a number of United States senatorships depended upon the success of the fusion ticket was the reason given.

Why Roberts Had No Troops.

Lord Roberts' declination to allow troops to be withdrawn from South Africa for this way. The secretary of state for war, Lord Lansdowne, cabled Lord Roberts asking if he could spare a division, and Roberts repiled "Yes." Lord Lansdowne then selected a number of favorite officers who have been cooling their heels in the drawing rooms at home for billets with the force. In the meanwhile Roberts cabled suggesting that several of his tried commanders should accompany the division he was preparing, adding that if any army corps was needed he would like to go himself. These recommendations put Lord Lansdowne in an awkward fix. Before he answered Lord Roberts' suggestions the latter heard from private sources that none of his seasoned lieutenants were to go, but that "warriors who had fattened on the fleshpots of the city" were coming out to take all commands in the expédition, whereupon the little man promptly wired London that it was impossible to send any troops at all out of South Africa, his previous offer being based on Imperfect information, whereupon Lord Roberts' army rejoiced and the war office was reluctantly obliged to abandona scheme whereby it was hoped to mollify many distinguished peace-soldiers and their relations. There is no definite confirmation of this, but it is told with considerable circumstantiality. Mr. Bryan this evening received the following telegram:

MINNETONKA BEACH, July 6.

Accept my congratulations upon your unanimous nomination.

ADLAI STEVENSON.

Mr. Bryan said he expected a number of visitors, some prominent in the councils of the democratic party, beginning temorrow and continuing next week. He would not specify who they were. All Lincoln are expecting a crowd from Kansas City with the adjournment of the national convention, and preparations are already going forward for some sort of a local demonstration.

A dispatch from Minneapolis, Minn., yesterday says: The news of his nomination The resignation of Lord Wemyss, the hon-orary colonel, and Col. Eustace Balfour, the orary coionel, and Col. Eustace Balfour, the commanding officer of the crack London' Scottish Volunteers, as a result of their desire to protest against the government's treatment of the volunteers in the service, has created a sensation. Col. Balfour is a brother of the cabinet minister of that rame, and Lord Wemyss has probably done more for this branch of Great Britain's defences then any other man. The troub's in-law, Rev. M. D. Of course I shall. How else could I accept? I believe the democrats generally will support the ticket. I had expected to do some campaigning, but now I shall do a great deal more." more for this branch of Great Britain's defenses than any other man. The trouble arose over the war office refusing to give a capitation grant to the London Scottish because they were unable, owing to having 138 men at the front, to put 50 per cent of their strength in camp for the maneuvers. Lord Wemyss, writing to Lord Lansdowne, frankly tells him he has ignored the original intention of the volunteer force and has changed its character and constitution.

Kidney trouble causes quick or unsteady heart beats, and makes one feel as though they had heart trouble, because the heart is over-working in pumping thick, kidney-poisoned blood through veins and arteries.

It used to be considered that only urinary troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all constitutional diseases have their beginning in kidney trouble.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's

The President's secretary, George B. Cortelyou, was the first person to greet him as he stepped off the platform. Carriages were in waiting and the march for the President's home was at once taken up. All along the line from the station to the McKinley residence, nearly a mile the streets were lined with people, and Governor Roosevelt was kept busy bowing his acknowledgments to the acclaims of the people of Canton. A brass band playing patriotic airs led the procession. The carriage in which Governor Roosevelt rodewas surrounded with small boys shouting at the highest pitch of their voices, and by bicyclists, who seemed anxious to feast their eyes on the Rough Rider.

The yard of the McKinley residence and the streets adjacent were literally packed with humanity when the governor alighted from his carriage and walked briskly toward to have.

New Way of Packing Butter. Vice Consul George H. Murphy, at Magdeburg, writes to the State Depart-used in Australia, consists in placing the butter in a box formed of six plates of ordinary window glass whose edges are closed with gummed paper; the glass box is covered with a layer of burnt gypsum (plaster of paris) about one-fifth of an inch thick and is wrapped in specially prepared waterproof packing paper. Gypsum being a bad conductor of heat, a regular temperature is maintained inside the glass box. There are made now cases that will easily hold 100 kilograms (220 pounds) of butter.

Governor Roosevelt arrived in Canton over the Valley railroad at 5:39 o'clock. His only companions from Cleveland to Canton were the newspaper men who have accompanied him on his long trip from Oklahoma. As the governor alighted from the train, the whistles blew, cannon becomed, and the immense crowd gathered about the station gave him a mighty cheer of welcome. The Streets Are Full of It Every Day.
